

MAXX KLAXON: BIO

MAXX KLAXON is taking his music to the masses. Based at a secure, undisclosed location in Brooklyn, NY, this Miami native combines sensual synths, robotic vocoders, and hard beats with a satirical take on politics and culture.

Comrade Klaxon has processed the audiovisual stimuli of his youth -- analog electronics, sci-fi TV, and drum machines -- into a sharp and sweet pop synthesis. Now he's out to liberate (and dominate) the globe, with electro mind control.

Maxx's music draws on the precision of Kraftwerk, the wit and style of the Pet Shop Boys, and the 21st-century electro distortion of Ladytron and Adult. To that mix he adds Italo-disco grace notes, and a jolt of electro-bass bounce, to keep the people moving. The result is clever, seductive electropop for the clash of civilizations.

- Maxx Klaxon's tracks have received support from Holland's VPRO radio network, Berlin DJ Edwin Brienen's XTRMNTR radio show, Italy's Radio Onda Rossa, numerous Internet radio outlets, and electro club DJs in Germany, Austria, Holland, Italy, Finland, Sweden, England, Ireland, Scotland, Belgium, Spain, and the USA.

- Maxx Klaxon played his first major show of the twenty-first century on March 18, 2005 at Rare in New York City, as part of ElectroFest/05. He has also performed at 169 Bar and The Delancey. He is currently starting a residency as a performer and DJ at SPLICE, the new weekly electronic event at Solas, in NYC's East Village.

ALL HAIL THE MUSIK OF COMRADE KLAXON!

"Shame has now been removed from both 808s and spandex, and the Angelmaker label's attempt to pair the two has attracted the brightest European electro acts and received the blessing of Iron Maiden. ... Clips from G.W. Bush's 'War on Terror' speech added to the throb of 'Die With Your Boots On' unveil timely wisdom in 20-year-old lyrics."

--Ethan Swan, The Portland Mercury

"Maxx Klaxon turns 'Die With Your Boots On' into [POWERSLAVES'] centerpiece, with male and female vocals and a relaxed confident pace that brings solid power to the version. " --Carl Thien, Gullbuy.com

"If one album this year had to reflect our personal attitude to music then a shit-load of Iron Maiden cover versions by some dodgy European break-dancers/dominatrixes nicely sums it up, I think. ... Some camp Berliner bloke makes a damn good job of 'Die With Your Boots On'...." --ProperTop

"Maxx Klaxon's cabaret-esque cover of 'Die With Your Boots On' gets girls to take out the trash, and rub it all over their precious bodies. That's how awesome it is." --Discogs.com
